ABSTRACT

Educational materials available on loan to educators in the region from the Resource and Referral Center of the Appalachia Educational Laboratory's Regional Exchange (AEL-Rx) are listed by title, author(s), sponsoring institution(s), annotation, and identification number. The more than 1,300 documents included cover a wide range of educational improvement topics, e.g., reading, mathematics, basic skills, competency-based education, and research and development utilization projects. Each document is listed in all four sections. (FM)

INTRODUCTION

The Research and Development Exchange (RDx) is a nationwide network of regional educational laboratories and a university-based research and development (R & D) center which work together to: (1) promote collaboration among dissemination and school improvement programs; (2) promote the use of R & D outcomes that support dissemination and school improvement efforts; (3) promote dissemination and school improvement efforts; and (4) promote an information exchange between educational practitioners and educational researchers. In 1976 the National Institute of Education (NIE) instituted the RDx as part of its Regional Program. The RDx is composed of seven regional exchanges and four central support services. The Appalachia Educational Laboratory's Regional Exchange (AEL-Rx) is an arm of the nationwide RDx network.

The AEL-Rx serves eleven states within the Appalachian Region: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia. Although the ultimate clients we intend to serve are students, classroom teachers, and building level administrators, the complexity of these client groups requires us to work primarily through state education agencies' (SEAs) dissemination and school improvement staff. The persons listed on the back cover function as the linking agents within their states and are active members of the AEL-Rx Advisory Committee which guides the activities of the Regional Exchange Program.

In 1977, the AEL-Rx began to develop a Resource Center in order to provide a central location of research and development products relating to basic skills. This initial collection of materials consisted of no more than twenty items. By 1979, the Resource Center had expanded its databank to include over 1300 documents covering a wide range of educational improvement topics, such as reading, mathematics, basic skills, competency-based education, Research and Development Utilization Projects, and many more. In addition to the databank collection, the Resource Center began providing supplementary online search services with the eleven state Rx region. To better reflect the expanded operations, the Resource Center changed its name to the Resource and Referral Center (RRC).

In order to meet the goals of the RDx, AEL's RRC has compiled this catalog of special materials to promote the use of R & D outcomes that support dissemination and school improvement efforts. This catalog was compiled in an effort to bring together these materials in a readable format so that AEL might share new resources with the region's educators.

USER GUIDE

This Catalog is organized into four sections: Subject, Author, Institution, and Summary. Each document can be found in every section. All documents are listed by an AEL-Rx identification number. The "call" number of each document is the number used in requesting a specific document. All documents cited in this Catalog are available on loan.

The Subject Section lists all documents by subject index based on the ERIC Thesaurus of Descriptors. Identifiers are used where there were no appropriate descriptors. The subject index will enable a user to locate the documents that are of interest. If only the name of the author of the document is known, check for it in the Author Section. When looking for research being conducted by an organization such as a regional educational laboratory, state department of education, association, or university, check the Institution Section. For more information about the content of the document, refer to the identification number listed sequentially in the back of the Catalog under Summary Section for a brief description of the document.

ORDERING INSTRUCTIONS

Any educator within the AEL-Rx states may borrow materials listed in the Catalog. Please make requests by using the AEL-Rx identification number as well as the title of the requested document. The loan period is three weeks and may be extended at the user's request pending no other requests for the document. Make requests to:

SPELLING AND WRITING PATTERNS: BOOK F. TEACHER'S REVISED EDITION. 1975 128 p.

This guide consists of the Refresher Program, Levels 1-21; the Basic Program, Levels 22-27; and the Power Program with extra lists.

AEL-Rx 000-660

3140 IMPORTANT WORDS. TEACHER'S EDITION. 1974 144 p.

This volume was planned to help students from grades six to nine master the vocabulary that constitutes 90 percent of their writing needs.

AEL-Rx 000-661

1620 POWER WORDS. TEACHER'S EDITION. 1974 160 p.

This volume is a companion to Follett's 3140 Important Words. It presents words that have less than 70 percent spelling accuracy at the eighth grade (according to the New Iowa Spelling Test).

AEL-Rx 000-662

MAY I COME IN? SKILLS HANDBOOK. 1969 92 p.

This Handbook is an integral part of the instructional program of Level 5 Reading. Each of the pages is designed to strengthen and extend the skills presented in the teacher's edition.

AEL-Rx 000-663

INDIVIDUALIZED SPELLING AND WRITING PATTERNS. TEACHER'S MANUAL. 1973 128 p.

This teacher's manual for the Individualized Spelling and Writing Patterns Program includes an introduction to the program and its components, teaching procedures to use; diagnostic and prescriptive information, the management of individualized spelling and a glossary.

INDIVIDUALIZED SPELLING AND WRITING PATTERNS. SPELLING SCRIPTS. 1973 94 p.

These are scripts for the spelling tests that are part of the Individualized Spelling and Writing Patterns Program.

AEL-Rx 000-665

INDIVIDUALIZED SPELLING AND WRITING PATTERNS. RESPONSE BOOK. 1973 80 p.

This workbook provides prescription logs, placement tests, pretests and post tests, introductory skills training activities, word hurdle tests, review tests, and spelling mastery logs.

ELEMENTS OF COMPUTER CAREERS.

1977 344 p.

This textbook has been demonstrated to provide an effective and motivating course of instruction for students and teachers alike. It may be used in a setting where a computer is available, one in which there is access to a remote terminal, or one in which neither is at hand.

AEL-Rx 000-667

A COMPUTER SIMULATION OF THE U.S. ENERGY CRISIS (ENERGY). TEACHER AND STUDENT GUIDE.

1977 52 p.

This computer program, ENERGY, simulates the pattern of energy consumption in the U.S. The ENERGY model is designed for use both as the basis for a roleplaying game, and as an experimental device for students to test various strategies and solutions.

COMPUTER ORIENTED EXERCISES ON ATTITUDES AND U.S. GASOLINE CONSUMPTION (ATTITUDE). TEACHER AND STUDENT GUIDE.

1975 46 p.

This unit is concerned with the attitude of people toward the gasoline shortage and different steps the government could take in order to reduce gasoline consumption. Part of the exercises make use of a computer program, ATTITUDE. Some of the exercises involve students' taking polls in order to determine the attitudes of their friends, relatives, neighbors, etc., toward methods of reducing gasoline consumption.

THE GLOBAL ENERGY SITUATION ON EARTH. TEACHER AND STUDENT GUIDE.

1977 40 p.

This unit is organized around a computerized database of information related to global energy use. Using the computer program EARTH, students are guided through a series of inquiries into the database. The database may be expanded by the teacher to allow further exploration into the factors associated with energy use and production.

AEL-Rx 000-670

A COMPUTER ORIENTED PROBLEM SOLVING UNIT (CONSUME). TEACHER AND STUDENT GUIDE.

1977 64 p.

This mathematically-based unit introduces students to some basic issues concerned with U.S. energy consumption. It is divided into five logical sections, each dealing with a main issue. Several short computer problem solving and simulation programs are provided within the text which students use to help solve problems given in the exercises.

AEL-Rx 000-671

OUR U.S. ENERGY (FUTURE). TEACHER AND STUDENT GUIDE.

1977 64 p.

This unit explores effects of 13 main energy-related decisions proposed in President Ford's 1975 State of the Union Address. The program FUTURE at the base of the unit simulates the effects of any combination of the decisions on energy supply and consumption, on domestic production and reserves, and on pollution.

MINIMUM COMPETENCY TESTING: AN INSURANCE POLICY FOR SURVIVAL SKILLS.
1977 n.p.

This paper states a case for minimum competency testing and the need for survival skills which brings a need for proficiency testing.

AEL-Rx 000-699

MINIMAL COMPETENCY TESTING: A LOOK AT STATE STANDARDS.
1977 n.p.

This document lists the variety of ways in which state legislatures are attempting to legislate mastery of "basic skills" by pupils at several grade levels.

AEL-Rx 000-700

ABILITY AND CREATIVITY IN MATHEMATICS.
1973 45 p.

The relationships of intelligence, achievement, age, sex, heredity, and psychosocial factors to mathematical creativity are carefully reviewed and discussed in this research review which represents and attempt to ferret out and focus upon the abilities which interact with creativity and mathematics.

AEL-Rx 000-701

LANGUAGE FACTORS IN LEARNING MATHEMATICS.
1972 42 p.

This paper focuses on the relationship of verbal factors to mathematics achievement, and reviews relevant research from 1930 to the present.

AEL-Rx 000-702

TEACHING MATHEMATICS TO DISADVANTAGED PUPILS: A SUMMARY OF RESEARCH.
1971 65 p.

This paper reviews research related to the teaching of mathematics to disadvantaged students.

AEL-Rx 000-703

INTELLECTUAL GROWTH AND UNDERSTANDING MATHEMATICS.
1971 21 p.

This paper reviews twenty-five years of Piaget research in intellectual growth as it pertains to the learning and understanding of mathematics.

MAN-MACHINE-LANGUAGES.

1971 42 p.

This volume introduces both teachers and administrators to the use of computers in education. Included are such topics as time sharing, introductory programming, and the use of different types of applications.

AEL-Rx 000-751

REACT AND THE COMPUTER IN EDUCATION.

1971 52 p.

This publication provides an overview of the course of study for teachers and administrators as well as serving as a general introduction to computers. It covers the functions of a computer system and its hardware and software components.

AEL-Rx 000-752

FLOWCHARTS AND ALGORITHMS.

1971 56 p.

This document explores problem-solving techniques with particular emphases on the algorithmic approach and flowcharting. It is considered as a prerequisite to programming units.

AEL-Rx 000-753

USING THE TELETYPE.

1971 48 p.

This publication instructs the reader in the teletype by a progression of "hands-on" steps at the keyboard.

AEL-Rx 000-754

THE SOCIAL IMPACT OF COMPUTERS.

1971 114 p.

This publication presents a potential impact of computers on society. Areas of creativity, privacy of information in a retrieval systems, and "computer utility" are explored.

SOME REASONS WHY TEACHERS ARE EASIER TO UNDERSTAND THAN TEXTBOOKS. READING EDUCATION NO. 9.
1979 15 p.

This report considers the questions of why children find textbooks to be much more difficult than teachers' presentations. The authors are cognitive psychologists whose view is that both reading and listening require the interplay of a variety of complex processes and that, although there are many similarities, there may be important differences between listening and reading in addition to those having to do with decoding, vocabulary and syntax.

American elementary schools are more likely than girls to have serious reading problems, as indicated by the much larger percentage of boys than girls remedial reading classes. Two strands of research are examined: 1) studies on the possibility that the predominance of female teachers in elementary schools has a negative effect on boys' reading performance; and 2) studies on the effects of children's interests in the reading task and in the reading material on their reading performance.

BEGINNING READING: THEORY AND PRACTICE. READING EDUCATION REPORT NO. 3.
1977 15 p.

This paper interprets reading as an interactive process between the information in the reader's head and the information in the text. The bulk of the article is devoted to the consideration of a number of problems encountered by beginning readers and what those problems imply for reading instruction. Problems discussed are related to decoding, syntax, the differences between spoken and written language, semantics and text organization.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD STORY? READING EDUCATION REPORT NO. 5.
1978 15 p.

This paper discusses two methods of text analysis used in research on children's understanding of stories: the story grammar approach and the plans analysis approach. Both methods lead the author to similar basic conclusions: that children who have limited experience with real stories may have difficulty in understanding them; that stories draw on the reader's prior beliefs and expectations; and that the inherent complexity of story understanding means that there are usually several "correct" but different ways of understanding the same story.

1977 32 p.

This paper reports the results of a preliminary survey of the costs associated with legislated minimal competency programs. Two perspectives are presented. The first views legislated minimal competency programs as an instance of government regulation and shows some of the ways in which regulatory actions may increase the costs of operation for regulatees. The second perspective is a cost-benefit approach.

THE CASE OF MINIMUM COMPETENCY TESTING.
1978 4 p.

In this document, the author describes what he sees as widespread acceptance in our schools of an anti-intellectual philosophy of education and maintains that competency testing does not cause failure but only leads to the recognition of it. He discusses some of the problems involved in building tests for minimum competence and concludes that the acceptable level of competence should be determined on the basis of a consensus of expert judgments. What he does not discuss is how that consensus will be reached.
